Tokyo, August 1, 2025 – Gaw Capital Partners, a multi-asset investment management firm focusing on real estate, growth equity, private credit, and infrastructure markets globally, and DayOne, a Singapore-based global data center developer and operator, today broke ground on Phase One building within Gaw Capital's 80MW data center campus in Tokyo, Japan.

Strategically located in the Fuchu Intelligent Park, a well-established data center cluster less than 30km from central Tokyo, the campus will offer a total IT capacity of 80MW, with approximately 66,360 square meters of gross floor area. Upon completion, it will be among the largest data center developments in Fuchu City in terms of IT load.

Phase One building of the campus comprises a nine-story building featuring ten data halls with an IT capacity of 18MW and is targeted to be core and shell ready by mid-2027. NEC Facilities serves as the architect, with HASEKO Corporation appointed as the main contractor.

This cutting-edge hyperscale facility integrates advanced cooling technologies and harnesses renewable energy sources to enhance energy efficiency. It aims to achieve leading ESG and operational certifications, including CASBEE, LEED and ISO50001 Energy Management, reinforcing the commitment to sustainability and innovation in next-generation digital infrastructure.

The groundbreaking ceremony was attended by senior representatives from Gaw Capital, DayOne, United Overseas Bank, Crédit Agricole Bank, HASEKO Corporation and NEC Facilities, including Mr. Kenneth Gaw, President and Managing Principal of Gaw Capital Partners and Mr. William Huang, Chairman of DayOne. The event underscores the collective commitment of all partners to advancing Japan's digital ecosystem and fostering greater regional connectivity.

Mr. Nicholas Toh, Managing Director – Head of Data Center Platform, Asia (Ex-China) of Gaw Capital Partners, emphasized, "This groundbreaking event marks an important milestone in Fuchu City's digital evolution. This collaboration merges Gaw Capital's global real estate experience with DayOne's expertise in operating high-performance data centers, illustrating our joint dedication to crafting a world-class infrastructure to meet the escalating data processing demands catalyzed by the rise of generative AI in the region."

Ms. Jamie Khoo, CEO of DayOne, remarked: "Today's groundbreaking signifies the start of our inaugural project in Japan. This campus will deliver the foundational infrastructure needed to support the rapid growth of cloud, AI, and next-generation technologies in Japan and the region. It also represents an important step in expanding our global platform, following our successful execution of the SIJORI (Singapore-Johor-Riau Islands) strategy across Southeast Asia."

Japan is one of the world's largest Tier 1 data center markets, with Greater Tokyo serving as the nation's primary digital hub due to its strong domestic and international connectivity. With the groundbreaking of its first data center in Japan, DayOne reaffirms its position as a leading provider of high-performance digital infrastructure, marking a significant step in advancing the country's data ecosystem.
